in. What I Love-and Don't-Love About

Having An Older Son She calls it "mommy's time." I told her I wanted to be a mom when I was 25. It was imprudent; I was a child with no concept of the fact that I could raise a child. But I wanted to be a mom, and I wanted to do it right now. She had a conversation with a friend of hers who was also married with kids. He told her that when he saw her, the first thing he noticed was her hair. It was long.

I remember hearing that and thinking, “That is disgusting.” She’s right. I’m pretty sure my son hates my hair. I know he hates my hair. “No I don’t hate your hair,” he said in the car the other day. “I have an understanding of why you had to cut it.” I told her, “Oh, what is that?” and she told me. “It’s just that I want to be a mom when I’m 25.” She was telling me about it after finishing reading the latest “The Body Project” book about the lives of other mothers. She doesn’t want to be a 35-year-old mom, she said. She wants to be a mom when she’s 25 and have all the time in the world
