Category:Android (operating system) devices Category:Phones Category:LeagooTuesday, June 2, 2014 More to this than meets the eye Hi folks! I'm sorry I haven't posted in a while. Life has been pretty busy around here. We've been spending the last few months creating a new home for a ragtime band of musicians. Here's a list of their gigs from last year. There's a good chance we'll be playing again in the next few months. This is mainly a labor of love for me, and I hope you enjoy hearing the band too. It was a lot of fun making the music we play. Leptomeningeal dissemination of pre-existing intracranial malignancies in HIV-positive patients: case report and literature review. Leptomeningeal metastasis (LM) of intracranial malignancies is a severe complication in patients with AIDS. LM may be the first presentation of the neoplastic disease. We report two cases of LM of intraparenchymal tumours in patients with AIDS, in which the diagnosis was first made on cerebrospinal fluid (CSF) analysis. Case 1: a patient with AIDS diagnosed with a non-Hodgkin's lymphoma of the CNS (medullary type), a history of pericarditis and pancytopenia. The diagnosis was made on CSF cytology, CSF biochemistry, MRI and CT. Case 2: a patient with a history of HIV infection and ischaemic stroke, with a secondary diagnosis of metastatic lesions of the CNS. The neuro-oncologist started a therapy for a lymphoma, and a cerebral tumour was diagnosed during the treatment. The diagnosis was made on MRI, CSF cytology, CSF biochemistry and the patients' clinical condition. Therapy was started for an HIV-1 positive patient who presented with intracranial dissemination of a secondary intraparenchymal tumour that was apparently never a haematological disorder in the past. Expression of stromelysin-1 in the breast and its association with progression to breast cancer. The proteolytic enzyme stromelysin-1 has been implicated in invasion and metastasis of melanoma and myeloma. We examined its association with invasion and metastasis of breast cancer and its specificity in the tumor. The expression of stromelysin-1 in breast tissues from

Weight-loss maneuvers have been used for both therapeutic and cosmetic purposes in people with Parkinson's disease. They may provide benefits or risks. To determine effects of weight-loss maneuvers for early Parkinson's disease. We searched The Cochrane Library, MEDLINE, and EMBASE on June 4, 2014, for studies of weight-loss maneuvers in early Parkinson's disease. We included randomized controlled trials comparing weight-loss maneuvers with standard care or placebo. We used a risk of bias assessment to rate included trials and undertook sensitivity analyses to assess the robustness of results. We included six trials that assessed patients with early Parkinson's disease; five trials (225 participants) compared weight-loss maneuvers with standard care; and one trial (23 participants) compared weight-loss maneuvers with placebo. Trial quality was poor and data were unavailable for analysis of many outcomes. Weight-loss maneuvers did not decrease disease progression (hazard ratio [HR] 0.99, 95% confidence interval [CI] 0.85-1.15) or improve quality of life (standardized mean difference, -0.64, 95% CI -1.49 to 0.20). There was insufficient evidence of a difference between groups in terms of adverse events (risk ratio, 1.07, 95% CI 0.64-1.80). Weight-loss maneuvers do not decrease disease progression or improve quality of life or adverse effects in patients with early Parkinson's disease./* * Copyright 2017 Andrey Semashev * * Distributed under the Boost e79caf774b
