Solucionario Teoria Electromagnetica Hayt 5 Edicion

Solucionario Analisis De Circuitos En Ingenieria 6ta Edicion - j.r. haytQ: How to compile multiple actions into one action builder in compileAsSingle()? I have several types of Get and Post requests for my app. I'm trying to conditionally compile them all into a single action so the actions can be treated like a super-type. I'm able to compile them using the methods in the ActionBuilder class (e.g. using the actionBuilder.addGet(), addPost() methods) but I can only do this for one type of request at a time. If I use compileAsSingle() to compile multiple actions they all compile but are all compiled into the same merged action. I'm trying to figure out if there is a way to have the compiled actions build into separate actions so I can have them treated as a different action type. These are the compile() methods I'm currently using and the compiled actions that are created when this is ran.

//base/GetRequest.class public static class GetRequest { public static String buildAsAction() { ActionBuilder actionBuilder = ActionBuilders.actionBuilder() .addGet('/foo', params); .addGet('/bar', params); Action action = actionBuilder.build(); return action.toString(); } public static void compile(ActionBuilder actionBuilder) throws BuildException { actionBuilder.addGet('/foo', params); actionBuilder.addGet('/bar', params); Action action = actionBuilder.build(); return; } }
//base/PostRequest.class public static class PostRequest { public static String buildAsAction() {
ActionBuilder actionBuilder = ActionBuilders.actionBuilder() .addPost('/foo', params);
