it's specified here. > It is a bad idea to re-encrypt files unless they are encrypted already. As in your case, the MP3 files may be not encrypted. It is a good idea to make them encrypted. The following steps can help you. 1. Create folder in your system: C:\Ramdisk\Keys\Mp3k 2. Create two new text files and save them as Mp3k.txt and Mp3l.txt 3. R/W your MP3 files from directory C:\Ramdisk\Keys\Mp3k in text files Mp3k.txt and Mp3l.txt 4. Write the license key to your file Mp3k.txt for the file Mp3k 5. Write the license key to your file Mp3l.txt for the file Mp3l Steps 2 and 3 are important. NOTE: The files you generate must NOT contain the same license key or these files cannot be encrypted (the files can be decrypted, but the corresponding private key is not generated). For further information refer to this article: I have worked on some encryption software in past and it works really well. You may try working with this software. Here is the link: Licensing software is also the same. For licensing software you may use this software: This software will take care of the details and generate the Ramdisk License Key for both the MP3 files. Here is my input using the template as shown in the link above: If you want to license just MP3 file, you may create a brand new text file for the MP3 file and put the key for the file. You can also modify the template and change it for the file. Here are the examples
